

FULL MOON IN LIBRA · MONDAY, 22 MARCH 2027

Capricorn

This ritual is about career, ambition, and the mark you are making in the world.

There is a version of your professional life that is waiting for you to want it clearly enough to act without apology, and tonight is the night you stop hedging.

PREPARATION

Face east. East is the direction of sunrise, of the moment the day declares itself — and your ambition deserves that kind of clarity and declaration. Set up your space with the deliberateness of someone preparing for important work: no mess, no disorder, items placed with intention. Silence every device. Pour yourself something serious and good — a strong black tea, a small pour of something aged, water in a proper glass — hold it in one hand as if about to make a toast to something not yet accomplished but already in motion, and drink. Close your eyes and picture your professional life not as it is today, but as you intend it to be: your name known, your work valued, the particular satisfaction of having built something that carries your signature. Stay there until the picture has edges and weight. Open your eyes when ambition has replaced anxiety. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the dark green candle with both hands — one cupped beneath the other — as a signal that you are approaching your ambition not recklessly but with controlled, directed power.

Pass a small branch or sprinkle of cypress through the candle's warmth and breathe in its clean, resinous scent — the ancient smell of endurance and long-game thinking — letting it anchor you in the understanding that great work is built in years, not moments.

Hold the black tourmaline in your dominant hand and speak aloud — clearly, without softening — the specific professional goal you are pursuing, followed by the words: under Libra's light, this is the direction I choose.

Place the black tourmaline before the dark green candle and sit in silence for one full minute — not planning, not reviewing, just allowing the room to acknowledge what you have declared, because ambition acknowledged is ambition activated.

When the minute passes, leave the cypress beside the dark green candle as the candle continues to burn — the ritual closes when you stand and return to your daily life carrying the same directness you brought to the flame.

YOU WILL NEED

dark green candle

black tourmaline

cypress

♪ minimal focused ambient or slow ceremonial drumming