

NEW MOON IN LEO · MONDAY, 2 AUGUST 2027

Libra

This ritual is for friendships, community, and future goals.

The future you are building was designed to be shared, and the people meant to share it are already looking for you.

PREPARATION

Face south. Clear a generous circle of space around you — more than you think you need — because this ritual is about expanding your circle, and the space you make now reflects the life you are building toward. Let choral or ambient sound fill the room with something that feels like more than one voice, like a gathering. Pour a glass of something you love — sparkling water, rosé, a floral tea — and before you drink, imagine sharing it with the people who belong in the life you are growing toward, then sip. Close your eyes and picture your future as a place already populated with the right people: the collaborators, the friends, the community gathered around a shared purpose, the goals that feel large because they are held by more than one pair of hands. Open your eyes when that picture makes you feel more generous, not more anxious. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the pink candle and place it where its light can reach as far into the room as possible, because community and future vision are not small fires kept close — they radiate.

Apply a drop of ylang ylang to the inside of each wrist and bring them together briefly, pressing pulse point to pulse point, as an embodied reminder that connection begins in your own body before it finds anyone else.

Hold the rose quartz and name aloud — one by one — three people who already belong in your circle, and one quality that you are calling in from the friendships or alliances this New Moon in Leo is opening for you.

Set the rose quartz in the candle's warmth and write, on a small paper, one specific goal you are committing to share — an idea, a project, a dream that grows larger in community than in solitude — and place it beneath the stone.

Sit facing south with both hands resting open on your knees, palms up, and hold the posture until the choral sound or the silence around you feels like an answer, sealing your future and your people into this moment.

YOU WILL NEED

pink candle

rose quartz

ylang ylang

♪ uplifting ambient or soft choral tones