

FULL MOON IN LIBRA · SUNDAY, 9 APRIL 2028

Pisces

This ritual is about deep transformation, shared finances, and healing what lives beneath the surface.

Some things can only be healed in the dark, not because darkness is where they belong, but because that is where you are finally still enough to find them.

PREPARATION

Face west. West is the direction of the descending sun, of things completing themselves in the dark — and this ritual asks you to go somewhere most people are unwilling to go: inward, downward, into what is unresolved. Make the room dim and quiet. Let the music settle into the space for at least two minutes before you sit down, because this ritual requires an atmosphere, not just a setting. Pour yourself something that feels medicinal and kind — warm water with honey, chamomile, a small pour of something dark — hold it in both hands, and drink one slow sip as though you are giving yourself permission to take this seriously. Close your eyes and let the thing rise — the shared financial worry, the old wound, the transformation that has been pressing at your life from the inside — let it surface without immediately naming it or solving it. Just feel its shape. When you are ready to look at it directly, open your eyes. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the sea green candle and watch the color it casts against nearby surfaces — this is the light of the deep water, the light of the unconscious made visible, and you are bringing your full, unflinching attention to what lives there.

Hold the moonstone against your solar plexus — where you hold dread, and also hope — and simply breathe for one full minute, allowing the stone to receive whatever is moving in you rather than asking you to translate it into language yet.

Bring one or two drops of jasmine oil to the backs of your hands and hold them open in your lap, palms up — jasmine is the night-blooming flower, at its most potent in the dark, and this gesture is how you signal to the night that you are open to what it carries.

Speak aloud the thing you most need to transform — the financial dynamic, the inherited wound, the cycle you have been half-aware of for years — and speak it as a fact, not a plea: not please help me but this is what is here and I am ready to move it, because the Pisces full moon in Libra responds to clarity, not performance.

Place the moonstone directly in front of the sea green candle and leave it there until the candle burns out — the jasmine on your hands is the seal you carry on your body, a reminder for the days ahead that something real shifted here in the dark.

YOU WILL NEED

sea green candle

moonstone

jasmine

♪ deep Tibetan singing bowls or low drone