

FULL MOON IN SAGITTARIUS · MONDAY, 28 MAY 2029

Virgo

This ritual is for home, family, and your emotional roots.

The roots beneath you are older and stronger than whatever has been shaking the branches lately.

PREPARATION

Face north. Before you begin anything else, move through your space briefly — straighten a pillow, wipe a surface, close an open door — small acts of care that say to the room: you matter to me. Silence your phone and let the rain sounds settle into the background like weather outside a window. Pour a cup of something warm — tea, warm milk with honey, anything that tastes like comfort rather than function — hold it close to your face a moment and breathe the steam before your first sip. Close your eyes and picture the place that first made you feel safe: the light in it, the smell, the particular quality of belonging it gave you, and then picture your current home carrying that same quality — however imperfect, however unfinished. Open your eyes when both places exist in you at the same time. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the brown candle and let its warm, earthen color anchor you — this flame is not reaching skyward, it is reaching down, into foundation, into lineage, into the ground of things.

Take a sprig of rosemary and move through your space touching the doorframe, the windowsill, the threshold of any room that holds meaning, because the act of blessing a space with intention is the oldest form of homemaking.

Return to your ritual space and hold the amethyst in both hands, picturing one ancestor or one person from your family line — flawed and real — and sending them a single thread of understanding rather than judgment.

Speak aloud what you want your home — your actual, physical dwelling — to feel like for the people inside it, including yourself, making the words as specific and sensory as you can.

Place the amethyst in the corner of your home that feels most like a center, leave the sprig of rosemary beside it, and let the brown candle burn as the Sagittarius full moon seals what you have named into the walls of your life.

YOU WILL NEED

brown candle

amethyst

rosemary

♪ soft rain and warm piano, no lyrics