Leo

This ritual is about love, close partnerships, and the art of being genuinely open to another person.

Love does not wait for perfect conditions — it waits for a door left open.

PREPARATION

Face west. Soften the room — dim the lights, move anything hard-edged or functional away from your immediate circle, and let the space feel like somewhere a person could exhale. Silence your phone and set on soft chamber strings or quiet piano, letting the music settle before you begin, and pour a glass of wine — red if possible — holding it for a breath, feeling its weight, before the first slow sip. Close your eyes and picture the partnership you are calling in or deepening: not as a role to be filled but as a specific warmth, a voice, a way of being seen that you recognize even if you have not met it yet — let the feeling be full, let it be real. Open your eyes only when something in you softens and leans forward. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the gold candle and as the flame steadies, breathe in and allow yourself to feel — without apology — the full weight of what you are calling toward you, letting desire and tenderness occupy the same breath.

Hold the pyrite in both hands and feel its cool surface warm slowly between your palms, letting this be a reminder that real connection is built from substance, not from performance, and that you are bringing something genuine to what you are asking for.

Burn a small pinch of frankincense if you have a safe vessel for it, or simply open and breathe from the jar, drawing the resin scent deep into your lungs as you repeat internally — not as a wish but as a statement — the one quality you most want to give in this partnership, under the wide open skies of Aquarius.

Sit quietly with the pyrite in your lap and the candlelight moving softly across the walls, and let your mind rest on a specific moment — real or imagined — of being deeply known by someone: hold it without grasping, the way you hold something that belongs to you.

Set the pyrite beside the gold candle, rest one hand on it as you extinguish the flame with the other, and let the smoke rise as a signal that what you are ready for is now in motion.
