

NEW MOON IN SCORPIO · SUNDAY, 23 OCTOBER 2033

Aquarius

This ritual is for career, ambition, and the direction of your public life.

Ambition is nothing more than the refusal to let your best work remain private.

PREPARATION

Face east. Stand for a moment before you sit — let the east remind you that this is the direction of beginnings, of the light that rises before anything else. Clear the surface precisely; ambition requires a clear field of view. Let the ambient music or drumming start and feel it as momentum, not noise. Pour strong tea or black coffee, hold the cup, and take the first sip deliberately — this is the kind of care you are bringing to your work and your name from this night forward. Close your eyes and picture your professional life as you intend it to be: not the title or the applause, but the feeling of doing work that is yours, that is real, that carries your mark on it. Let that image crystallize until it feels like a direction rather than a dream. Open your eyes only when ambition and clarity feel like the same thing. The ritual is already in motion.

THE RITUAL

Hold the aquamarine to your forehead for thirty seconds, pressing it gently, letting it correspond to the mental clarity and focused vision that your career and public life require of you now.

Place one or two drops of bergamot oil or a small amount of the herb on your wrists and breathe in its sharp, bright clarity, letting it cut through any fog of doubt that has been sitting between you and the work you know you are capable of.

Light the blue candle and speak aloud — clearly, without apology — the specific ambition you are planting under this Scorpio new moon: what you are building, what recognition you are moving toward, or what professional step you are committing to take.

Set the aquamarine before the blue candle with the bergamot beside it, then sit with both hands resting on the table and hold the image of your stated ambition as if it is already complete — not as fantasy but as a plan whose first action belongs to tomorrow.

Close by placing your dominant hand over the aquamarine and pressing down firmly for a full breath, sealing the intention of purposeful, visible, real-world progress into the object that will carry it forward from this night.

YOU WILL NEED

blue candle

aquamarine

bergamot

♪ minimal focused ambient or slow ceremonial drumming