

NEW MOON IN PISCES · TUESDAY, 1 MARCH 2033

Virgo

This ritual is for relationships, love, and partnerships.

Every lasting partnership begins with a moment in which one person decided, quietly and without fanfare, to remain open.

PREPARATION

Face west. Soften the room — fold away anything angular or task-oriented, and let the space feel like an exhale rather than a to-do list. Silence every device and let the piano or strings settle over the room like a hand on a shoulder. Pour a glass of wine or warm herbal tea, hold it gently — not gripping — and take one quiet sip as a small act of receiving. Close your eyes and bring to mind the relationship or partnership you are calling toward: not its problems, but its quality — the texture of ease, the sound of real laughter, the feeling of being genuinely met by another person. Open your eyes only when that feeling is more present than the absence of it. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the brown candle and place it slightly to your left — the side of receiving — letting it hold the warmth of steady, grounded love under this Pisces new moon.

Lay a few sprigs of rosemary in a line between yourself and the candle, each one representing a quality you are genuinely ready to bring into a partnership — loyalty, presence, patience — placed without rushing.

Hold the amethyst at the center of your chest and breathe into it for seven slow breaths, letting each exhale release one small guard you have been keeping without knowing it.

With the amethyst still in hand, speak to the candle flame as though you are speaking to the person — present or future — who is part of this intention: say one honest thing about what you are ready to give, and one about what you are ready to receive.

Place the amethyst on top of the rosemary sprigs as a seal of soft intention, let the brown candle burn for at least half an hour, and leave the arrangement undisturbed until the new moon has fully passed.
