

NEW MOON IN SCORPIO · TUESDAY, 2 OCTOBER 2035

Leo

This ritual is for home, family, and emotional roots.

The roots you cannot see are doing more work than anything visible on the surface of your life.

PREPARATION

Face north. Move through the space slowly before you sit — straighten a pillow, close a door, tuck away anything that feels like unfinished business. Let the rain and piano begin, low enough that it sounds like it is coming from another room. Pour a mug of something warm — tea, broth, anything that requires two hands to hold — and sit with it for a moment, feeling its weight. Close your eyes and picture the home you are building or tending, not just the walls but the feeling inside them — who gathers there, what the light looks like on a good evening, the particular warmth of being known by the people you chose and the people who chose you. Open your eyes only when the image has settled into something that feels like belonging. The ritual begins with that feeling already inside you.

THE RITUAL

Hold the pyrite in both hands and press it gently between your palms, letting its solid, grounded weight stand in for the stability you are calling into your home and family life.

Light the gold candle and take a moment to watch the flame settle — not forcing it, just witnessing it find its rhythm, as you are learning to do with the people and places that hold your heart.

Place a small amount of frankincense near the base of the gold candle or pass it through the warmth above the flame, breathing in its ancient, restorative scent and letting it carry you toward the feeling of a home that is genuinely safe.

Set the pyrite before the gold candle and name aloud — quietly, no performance required — one person whose presence makes your home feel like itself, speaking their name as a form of gratitude rather than ceremony.

Allow the frankincense scent to fill the room as you sit quietly for two full minutes, hands in your lap, letting the Scorpio new moon's energy move through your roots and plant the intention of a home that holds and heals.

YOU WILL NEED

gold candle

pyrite

frankincense

♪ soft rain and warm piano, no lyrics