

NEW MOON IN VIRGO · SUNDAY, 2 SEPTEMBER 2035

Sagittarius

This ritual is for career, ambition, and public life.

Somewhere between where you are and where you intend to be, there is a decision that has not yet been made — tonight, you are making it.

PREPARATION

Face east. Stand tall before the ritual space — east is the direction of beginnings that mean business, and your posture is the first act of intention. Silence your phone and let ceremonial drumming or a spare, focused ambient sound give the space a spine. Pour a glass of wine or strong tea, hold it at chest height for a breath, drink it slowly and with purpose — this is the sip of someone who has decided. Close your eyes and see your professional life not as it is but as you intend it: your name spoken with respect, the work that carries your signature, the version of your public self that is fully yours. Open your eyes when ambition feels clean — not desperate, not apologetic, but clear. The ritual begins now.

THE RITUAL

Light the purple candle and let its flame stand as a marker: this is where your professional intentions are spoken out loud and taken seriously.

Light the sage and move it slowly through the space before you, clearing the air of old stories about what is or is not possible in your career — let the smoke carry them out.

Hold the lapis lazuli at your throat with both hands and breathe deeply, knowing this stone has been carried by rulers, scholars, and visionaries — let it carry clarity of purpose, public confidence, and professional ambition.

State aloud, in one direct sentence, the career move or goal you are initiating under this new moon — no hedging, no qualifiers, just the thing itself.

Place the lapis lazuli directly before the purple candle and allow the remaining sage to finish, sealing the declaration in smoke and flame.
