

FULL MOON IN PISCES · SATURDAY, 6 SEPTEMBER 2036

Scorpio

This ritual is for romance, creativity, and joy.

Joy and desire dressed in shadow are still joy and desire — and the moon in Pisces knows there is nothing shameful about wanting what you want.

PREPARATION

Face south. Let the room be warm — rearrange a cushion, light something soft, and let the music fill the space before you do anything else. Put your phone somewhere unreachable and let tonight exist without documentation. Pour a glass of wine or something you genuinely enjoy drinking, hold it, swirl it once, and take a first sip that is purely for pleasure. Close your eyes and picture what brings you joy that has no practical justification — a creative desire, a romantic spark, a pleasure you have been talking yourself out of — and feel it without apology. Open your eyes when the wanting feels clean and real.

THE RITUAL

Light the black candle and let it surprise you — its dark form holding a bright flame is tonight's first lesson about where creative fire and romantic desire actually live.

Hold the obsidian and feel its glass-smooth surface, its volcanic origin, and understand that the joy you are calling in is not frivolous — it is elemental, and it belongs to you under this Pisces full moon.

Light the myrrh resin or incense and let its ancient, resinous smoke fill the air around you as you name aloud one creative act or one romantic desire you have been keeping at a careful, managed distance.

Dance, draw, write one line, or simply move your body in any way that feels pleasurable and slightly indulgent — the obsidian in your hand is your witness, and the myrrh smoke is your record.

Set the obsidian in front of the black candle and let both burn and glow together until you feel the smile that means the ritual has worked — then seal it by extinguishing the flame with a single, joyful breath.

YOU WILL NEED

black candle

obsidian

myrrh

♪ gentle jazz or sensual acoustic strings